I do not own HP, and don't worry-I'm still working on my other stories, I just am suffering from a combination of plot bunny attack and writer'sblock. Enjoy.

Chapter 1)

Seven years. Seven years ago, nearly everyone in the Order of the Phoenix had died. Those that lived...All mudbloods and blood traitors had turned into slaves. Only she had managed to survive.

Hermione had spent the last seven years on the run. Minerva McGonagall had started training her to be an animagi in her sixth year, and a year after she had escaped she had finally managed to perfect it. She could turn into a bird called a Merlin. It was kind of ironic, being able to turn into a bird that shared it's name with a famous wizard. Especially since as a mudblood her magic was supposed to be stolen. She spent most of her time in that form, using it to hide. She didn't just fly around though. No, she learnt whatever magic she could, learning to survive.

She had lost hope-until today.

It was a spellbook, and it had taken her years to find. It had two spells she was going to use-a Time Travel spell and a permanent de-aging potion. She made the potion, practiced the spell, and made more potions, including the Polyjuice. She took the hair of two French muggle women, and finally it was time.

-January 1923-

A woman named Hope La Lune bought a beautiful manor deep in the had a lake put in, and filled it with wildlife.

A woman named Faith La Lune opened up a Gringotts.

The two were never seen together but claimed to be cousins.

-May 1928-

Hope faded into Hermione as the polyjuice potion wore off. Tom Riddle had been at the orphanage for nearly a and Faith, a muggle and a witch cousins would disappear. She looked at her maidservant, a woman under the imperius curse. The woman would turn into Faith, and take her to the Wool Orphanage. Weeping, she would mention her beautiful sister had died, and that _looking at her child was too painful._

She would hand over a birth certificate (a fake, it merely appeared authentic) saying that her name was Hermione Espere Athena Esmerillon La Lune Polet. Born October 31st 1927. Her parents were Hope Evangeline Lucinda Esmerillon La Lune-Mother- and her father was Edgar Polet. Hermione had actually met Edgar. He was the grandson of a Squib, part Bulgarian and part Irish, and was suffering some an incurable disease. He knew about magic, and had agreed to Hermione's plan. He was dying anyways and he had no family either. Besides, they had brown hair and eyes so it was believable.

(Hope and Faith were created from the hair of French muggles-that also happened to be her relatives). Edgar had died the last of the Polets. 'Faith' would then leave, and forget everything. A sort of delayed obliviate.

looked at the poor sobbing woman. She had pushed this small little girl into the older woman's arm. She had gone on and on about her poor dead sister and her poor dead lover, and how looking at their child was painful and she was moving back to France.

She finally left, after she gave her a niece a locket.

Notes

Each part of Hermione new name is a nod to something important in her life

Espere is French for Hope, which is part of the reason why Hermione decided to go back in time.

Esmerillon: The name merlin is derived from the Dutch _Merlijn_, vernacular merlin, with the dropping of the 's' from _smerlijn_, _smerlin_ in turn is derived from Middle French _esmerillon-Wikipedia_. _This is a nod to Hermione's animagus form

Athena is the name of a Greek Goddess of Wisdom and Battle that is often compared to the Roman Goddess Minerva-a name shared by one of Hermione's teachers.

La Lune is a nod to Luna Lovegood.

Polet is a Bulgarian word, a nod to her once boyfriend Vicktor Krum.
